Prerequisites: Students are expected to be well grounded in microeconomic theory. The absolute course requirement is intermediate microeconomics, EC 201 or EC 203.

Textbook and Handouts: The assigned text is Robert Cooter and Thomas Ulen, Law and Economics (5th edition), Reading, MA, Addison Wesley, 2008. Your Course Pack contains additional reading assignments, and at times I will provide more material for study.

Method: This course requires active participation on a class-by-class basis. Although I frequently will use the traditional lecture method, I also will call on students in each class to discuss assignments and paper topics. Other experts will be introduced to the class. This course also relies on two short critical thinking papers and numerous reading assignments in lieu of a substantial research paper.

Grading: The final grade will be based on performance in the following categories:

- First Exam 30%
- Final Exam 30%
- Research Papers 30%
- Class Participation 10%

There will be no scheduling of makeup exams. Only under extremely extenuating circumstances will an excused absence be considered. Late submissions of papers will be penalized.

Course Calendar, Syllabus and Assigned Reading: The syllabus lists the assigned material for each class. I reserve the option to change assignments, including the dates for exams during the semester. “C&U” designates assignments in the text book, the other assignments are in your Course Pack.

Discussion Papers: You must submit discussion papers of no more than three pages on the dates specified in the syllabus. Each paper carries a weight of 15% toward calculation of your final grade. Your topic must be linked to the economic issues that we are studying; legal analyses and synopses are not acceptable. Class discussion, handouts and the text will provide numerous examples of the type of topics for the papers, but these examples per se cannot be used in your discussion papers. YOU must develop the topics. You may submit a proposal that seeks to determine whether the topic fits the course, but such a submission is not required. In the paper you must present a careful specification of the topic that you will discuss, explain why it is relevant to the course, and then present an economic analysis of the issue. The papers must be submitted to me at the BC email address listed above. Late submissions will be penalized; no excuses will be accepted.

A session is scheduled with an information services expert. There you can develop skills to assist your search for a topic. You do not have to research for source material but note carefully that every source must be documented and you must attach a bibliography. The analytical portion pf your paper will be three pages in length, no more, no less. Footnotes with substance, graphs, tables and the bibliography are to be on additional page(s). When citing to sources within the text, place in parentheses the author’s name and page number where I can find the information to which you referred in the text (e.g., (Smith, p.32)).

Other considerations: (1) When submitting the paper, save it as EC338 [space] [your last name 1] [or 2 if it is your second paper]. (2) At the very top of p.1, insert the topic’s title and your name. Number the pages. (3) Use default margins. (4) Submit the work in Word, and charts and graphs should be imported into Word. (5) Have a reliable person carefully proof read each of your papers before submission. (6) Insure that your version of Word can be opened by my computer. (For example, Microsoft eliminated “backward compatibility” such that a recent Office 2007 cannot be opened by an older version of Word.)

The Academic Development Center tutors students with writing assignments and provides feedback on drafts of papers. Consider using the people-resources of the Center which is located on the second floor of O’Neill Library.

Academic integrity will be respected in my courses. The Dean of A&S has asked faculty to include the following statement to students in course syllabi.

> “Boston College values the academic integrity of its students and faculty. It is your responsibility to familiarize yourself with the university’s policy on academic integrity: http://www.bc.edu/integrity.

If you have any questions, always consult your professor.

> “Violations of academic integrity will be reported to your class dean and judged by the academic integrity committee in your school. If you are found responsible for violating the policy, penalties may include a failing grade as well as possible probation, suspension, or expulsion, depending on the seriousness and circumstances of the violation.”
