C: The Father, and the Son, and the Holy Spirit, one in essence and undivided Trinity.
The celebrants exchange the Kiss of Peace.

THE CREED

D: The doors, the doors! Let us attend with wisdom!

C: I believe in one God, the Father Almighty, Maker of heaven and earth, and of all things visible and invisible. And in one Lord, Jesus Christ, the only-begotten Son of God, born of the Father before all ages. Light of light; true God of true God; begotten, not made, of one essence with the Father, by whom all things were made. Who, for us men, and for our salvation, came down from Heaven and was incarnate by the Holy Spirit of the Virgin Mary: and was made man. He was crucified also for us, suffered under Pontius Pilate, and was buried. The third day he rose again, according to the Scriptures. He ascended into Heaven, and sits at the right hand of the Father. And He shall come again with glory to judge both the living and the dead; of whose kingdom there shall be no end.

And in the Holy Spirit, the Lord and Giver of life, who proceeds from the Father, who together with the Father and the Son is adored and glorified; who spoke by the prophets.

And in One Holy Catholic and Apostolic Church.

I acknowledge one Baptism for the remission of sins.

I expect the Resurrection of the dead, and the life of the world to come. Amen.

The priest elevates the Holy Bread

—KNEEL—

C: One is holy, One is Lord, Jesus Christ, in the glory of God the Father. Amen.

While this and Communion chants are being sung, the priest breaks the bread into four segments, immerses one segment into the Chalice, the deacon pours zeon (warm water, 'the fullness of faith of the Holy Spirit') into the Chalice.

THE COMMUNION OF THE CLERGY AND THE FAITHFUL

The sacred ministers prayerfully receive the Holy Communion, then the deacon comes out of the Sacred Doors with the Chalice and invites the faithful to Communion.

D: In the fear of God, with faith, and with love draw near.

C: Amen. Amen. Blessed is he who comes in the name of the Lord; God is the Lord, and has manifested himself to us.

All: I believe, O Lord, and confess, that thou art Christ, the Son of the living God, who camest into the world to save sinners, of whom I am the greatest. I believe that what I receive is indeed thy very own pure Body and precious Blood. Therefore I beseech thee: have mercy on me, and forgive my transgressions, voluntary and involuntary, which I have committed by word or by deed, knowingly and unknowingly: and make me worthy without condemnation to partake of thy most pure Mysteries, unto the remission of sins, and unto life eternal. Amen.

O Son of God, receive me today as a partaker at thy mystical banquet: for I will not tell thy enemies thy secrets, nor will I kiss thee as did Judas: but like the thief do I confess to thee: Remember me, O Lord, in thy kingdom. Let the partaking of thy Holy Mysteries be for me not unto judgement or condemnation, O Lord, but unto the healing of soul and body together.

The priest distributes Holy Communion to the faithful, the choir sings communion hymns, and when the priest has finished, he blesses the people with the Chalice.

P: Save, O God, thy people, and bless ❖ thine inheritance.

C: We have seen the true light, we have received the heavenly Spirit, we have found the true faith; we adore the undivided Trinity, for It has saved us.

During the hymns, the sacred ministers cleanse the Paten, cense the Chalice, and return the Paten and Veils to the Prothesis, the priest turns to the people with the Chalice.:

P: Now and always, and forever and ever.

—STAND—

C: Amen. Let our mouths be filled with thy praise, O Lord, that we may extol thy glory, for thou hast made us worthy to partake of thy holy, deathless, most honored and life-giving sacraments. Strengthen us in thy sanctification, that all the day long we may learn thy justice. Alleluia, Alleluia, Alleluia.

THANKSGIVING AND DISMISSAL

The priest returns the Chalice to the Prothesis, folds the Antimension at the Altar, and says a silent prayer if thanksgiving.

D: Attend! Having partaken of the divine, holy, most pure, deathless, heavenly and life-giving fearful mysteries of Christ, O faithful, let us worthily give thanks to the Lord.
C: Lord, have mercy.

Preserve the fulness of thy Church: sanctify those who love the beauty of thy house: glorify them by thy divine power and do not forsake us who hope in thee.

Grant peace to thy world, thy churches, priests, and all thy people.

For every good gift, and every perfect grace is from above, from thee, Father of lights: and to thee do we proffer glory, and thanks, and adoration, to the Father, and to the Son, and to the Holy Spirit, now, and always, and forever and ever.

C: Amen.

P: Glory to thee, O Christ, our God, our hope, glory to thee.

C: Glory to the Father, and to the Son, and to the Holy Spirit, now, and always, and forever and ever. Amen.
Lord, have mercy. Lord, have mercy. Lord, have mercy. Father, bless!

P: May Christ, our true God, (who rose from the dead,) through the prayers of his most pure Mother, ...of our Father among the Saints, John Chrysostom, Archbishop of Constantinople... and of all the Saints, have mercy on us and save us, inasmuch as he is good and loves mankind.
C: Amen.

*After the final blessing, the faithful come forward to receive antidôron (blessed but unconsecrated bread) from the priest, who says: May the blessing (and mercy) of the Lord come upon you. and to kiss the Cross.
Those who have received communion begin their private prayers of thanksgiving.*

This translation contains all the parts of the Liturgy of Saint John Chrysostom which are heard aloud. It does not include the text of the prayers said silently by the sacred ministers, nor the more detailed rubrics. A full edition in that format would exceed fifty pages.

The Byzantine rite has always used a number of classical languages (especially Koinê Greek, Church Slavonic, Syriac, Arabic, Georgian) as well as most modern ones. The choice and style of language depends on the needs and preferences of the congregation being ministered to.

The following letters indicate the various participants in the Divine Liturgy:

- P: the celebrating priest(s)
- D: the deacon, in whose absence most parts are taken by the priest and others are omitted
- C: the choir or chanters (and congregation).

In the Byzantine usage, which constitutes the native rite of worship for more than 250 million Christians, the sign of the cross is made with the thumb and first two (or in some usages, only the first two) fingers of the right hand held together and the remaining fingers folded into the palm of the hand and with the 'crossbeam' moving from the right shoulder to the left.

The indications for standing, kneeling, and sitting follow a general practice in many Byzantine parishes in America, but great variation exists across communities. Even in the same church one can see some of the congregation standing while others are kneeling, and none think the others the worse for it.

—STAND—
—KNEEL—
—SIT—

A certain degree of freedom obtains in this regard: worshipers will chose to cross themselves at certain times to seal a particular petition or desire, or to kneel when they feel particularly penitential or humbled, or even to sit when they are extremely tired. Worshipers come and go and move about in the church much more freely than in Western churches.

Strictly speaking, standing throughout the liturgy, with kneeling and even full prostration on certain days at highly solemn moments, represents the most ancient Byzantine tradition. Sitting was reserved for the elderly and the infirm around the side walls of the church.

We distribute the Holy Mysteries under both species, intincted and placed on the tongue.

When you come to communion you may, if you like, give your first name to the priest, who will then include it in the distribution formula (The servant of God, N., receives the precious and lifegiving Body and Blood of our Lord God and Saviour, Jesus Christ, unto the forgiveness of sins and unto eternal life.)

Make a sign of the cross before and after receiving, and wipe your lips with the purificator after receiving.

This edition, prepared for Saint Joseph's Byzantine Mission, Wakefield MA, follows the translation and rubrics of the Romanian Catholics in America.

Slight variations in usage and phrasing exist among the different Byzantine communities. For example, where the Greek and Slavonic (and Western usage) say in the Sanctus 'Heaven and earth are full of thy glory...', the Romanian usage has 'His glory'.

Hymns and exclamations which vary by feast day and by locale are given in italics, using the most common version.
