

BOSTON COLLEGE ECONOMICS DEPARTMENT NEWSLETTER

Vol. IV. No. 2

June 1981

1980-81 was highlighted by fruition of the planned revitalization of the undergraduate Economics Honors Program. Eight students graduated with Honors while 120 students enrolled in honors seminars. To increase general awareness of the success of our undergraduate program, we have appended a list of those graduates from 1959-present (the Bourneuf era) who have gone on in economics. We were recently reminded by one of them that Alice had a very strong interest and much pride in their careers. Our list depends on faculty memories and we anticipate additions and corrections on current affiliations.

Lamentably, we continue to see our best students frequently choose law or business school over graduate work in economics. Only two of over 200 graduating majors this year are going on. Our attempts to correct their misinformation about the job market in economics are often unavailing. We hope the David Warsh series on the boom in economics in the Boston Globe last fall will have some effect.

Charles Mueller's Ph.D. thesis (Labor Force Migration: A Behavioral Approach) written under the direction of Marvin Kraus received the Irving Fisher Award this Spring. Given annually since 1970 by Omicron Delta Epsilon through agency of a prestigious committee, the recipients are nearly always from top ten schools (some previous awards were to Richard Roll and to Charles Nelson). Charlie is currently an economist at Planning Economics in Lexington. His thesis will be published by Academic Press in their Urban and Regional Economics Series.

Salih Neftci and John Hekman have resigned from the faculty. In their place we have hired Bruce Smith of MIT and Robert Steen of Princeton. Smith's thesis is Human Capital Accumulation in Monetary and Non-monetary Economies. Steen's thesis is Fiscal Zoning and Property Taxes: Computational Solutions of a General Equilibrium Model. We expect good things of both. We remain in the market for a senior macro economist. John Ciccolo (promoted to tenure this year) will be on sabbatical leave at Yale next year. Arthur Rolnick of the Minneapolis Fed will be a visiting associate professor. Ataman Aksoy (B.C. Ph.D. 1972) of Middle East Technical University will be welcomed back as a visiting Fulbright associate professor.

ALICE BOURNEUF LECTURE

Plan to be with us if you can on September 30, when Paul Samuelson will be here to launch the Alice Bourneuf lecture series. Professor Samuelson will speak at 4:30 p.m. and we will have a reception following the lecture.

We expect to make this an annual affair in the week of Alice's birthday (October 2) and we hope that many of you will join us to renew friendships, to have a good time, and to celebrate together what Alice has meant to us. Do plan to come.
