Publish | Review | Curate

Join the Alliance

Membership in the Alliance is open to organisations and initiatives working together to share knowledge and accelerate the adoption of the Publish, Review, Curate (PRC) model of scholarly publishing.

Membership is conditional on your compliance with the Membership Criteria and adherence to the PRC Alliance Principles. The PRC Alliance Leadership Team will evaluate your application and send you a confirmation by email.

For more information about joining as a founding member, please consult this background document.

Please explain in your response your specific activities that involve implementing or supporting PRC. Simply aligning with our principles is not sufficient.

← Back

Thank you for your response. ✨

---

Name:

Christopher F Baum

---

Organisation:

RePEc.org

---

Email:

baum@bc.edu

---

Category of membership (Implementer or Supporter):

Implementer

---

Provide specific information about how you implement or support PRC models and how your practices align with the PRC Principles:

RePEc hosts metadata for over 2,500 providers, many of which are universities, central banks, and international organizations. We encourage providers to make their full texts, particularly of preprints in economics and related disciplines, freely available. We also provide hosting of statistical software components and datasets that support empirical research. Providing both the links to preprints and to published journal articles from the major scholarly publishers makes it possible for students and researchers to trace the evolution of research findings, which often provides more insight to the underlying research strategy than can be gleaned from the edited article in which detailed discussion and appendices have been removed. RePEc has always strongly supported the ability of every institution to publicize its members' research, and currently contains metadata from research providers in 106 countries.

---

Publish | Review | Curate

This is a joint initiative of COAR and ASAPbio, with funding from Arcadia as part of the COAR Notify Project

About What is PRC? Benefits of PRC Our Principles Governance

Membership Criteria Join the Alliance